Summary

Observed Strengths

- Builds trust through integrity: He is consistently seen as values-led and dependable, with 360 feedback rating integrity as his strongest overall area and written comments highlighting candor, honesty and role-model behaviour.
- Develops others effectively: He is most strongly recognised for coaching and mentoring, with top 360 items on providing coaching, showing genuine concern for development, and giving honest feedback helpfully. His career is centred on executive coaching, assessment and leadership development.
- Communicates with clarity: He translates insight into clear direction, with strong ratings for communicating understanding of issues and helping others see purpose. References describe him as a strong communicator, listener and motivator.
- Brings strategic and creative thinking: His background includes strategy consulting, building assessment offerings, creating development frameworks and leading change-oriented work. Feedback also points to innovation, challenging standard approaches and credible change leadership.
- Commercially credible with senior clients: Earlier banking and consulting roles, leadership of a hedge fund sales desk, and building his own advisory business give him fluency with senior stakeholders in finance, legal and professional-services settings.

Likely Development Areas

- Execution consistency may vary: While he is seen as taking initiative, follow-through is less consistent in the 360, including lower ratings on always being counted on to deliver commitments. Personality data suggests he may prefer flexibility over sustained structure and can lose momentum under routine or pressure.
- Limited scaled operating leadership: The evidence shows strong advisory, coaching and small-team leadership, but not sustained enterprise leadership with broad P&L or large operational team accountability.
- External market sensing is weaker: His lowest 360 area is bringing outside insight back into the group and keeping customer needs central, suggesting he may be stronger as a trusted adviser than as an organisational “antenna.”
- Pressure may affect steadiness: Assessment data indicates he anticipates risk quickly and can be strongly affected by stress or uncertainty, which may reduce consistency in high-pressure operating environments.
